PLUNKITT TO SENATE AGAIN

A SINFUL DEAL WITH M'MANUS, ACCORDING TO BILLY LEE.

But It Has Chirked Up the Old Man and Makes Him Confident That He's Alive Folks Had Called Him a Dead One and Recommended Premature Burial.

A foolish little sunray darted over the roof of the Washington apartment house last evening, lit on the $3,000 diamond anchored firmly in the bosom of George Washington Plunkitt's boiled shirt and

Mr. Plunkitt's diamond shone no more radiantly than Mr. Plunkitt's countenance. for the old man of the Eleventh district is back again in politics and slated for the Senatorship to succeed Senator the Hon. The McManus, owner of the only pink Van Dyke in the gashouse country.

It's no secret along Ninth avenue that Plunk and The. McManus have made it up and are to fight shoulder to shoulder at the primaries next September, Mr. Plunkitt agreeing to help McManus retain the Tammany leadership of the Eleventh, Mr. McManus handing over the Senatorship in

George Washington P. was very chary of discussing the alliance, which has excited the district tremendously, but he said he would have a statement of importance to hand out on August 15. Until then, remarked the great apostle of honest graft, he preferred to remain in scholarly ob-

"But, if you want a tip," said Plunk, "bet all the two to one you can get, with your finger up all the time, that the old man will be there this fall like the cowcatcher of a locomotive. They thought they had me groggy, eh? Well, last week, in a Subway train I licked two dips who tried to mace me for my diamond, workin' the old coat game, kicked 'em in the shins and told 'em to try their tricks on some old guy. That shows whether Plunk is an old man or not. "Just forty years ago this fall, Bill Tweed shows whether Plunk is an old man or not.

"Just forty years ago this fall, Bill Tweed got me into politics, run me against Aleo Ward for Assemblyman in the old Seventeenth district, and I came lopin' under the wire 1,500 to the good. That's a pretty good omen, son, what d'ye think?

"When you see me shed this rock in my shirt front and can the gold watch that a grateful constituency presented me with then you'll know that Plunk is ready for the junk heap. Them jewels are the mark of my leadership in this district. I wear 'em because the people demand it. They are still proud of Plunk and his rich minerals, and they're gettin' pretty sick of the ragged tailed bunk artists that have been shootin' the bull into 'em for two or three years. After all, the people demand a gentleman to represent them."

It was Mr. Billy Lee who once went ten rounds to a draw with Matty Matthews, when Matty was a champion at that, who gave the big news to the Eleventh district last night from a cart tail at Eleventh avenue and Forty-sixth street. Mr. Lee captained the home guards for Plunk at the primaries last fall when McManus whipped the old man four to one, but Mr. Lee is out now against both McManus and Plunkitt, declaiming against such an unholy alliance.

Fire balls from the Roman candles cries-

Plunkitt, declaiming against such an unholy alliance.

Fire balls from the Roman candles criss-crossed over Mr. Lee's head, and the night was inflamed by No. 9 Jubilee torches as he called on the people to arise and smite Plunkitt, McManus & Co. There was a pretty good sized crowd too, and Mr. Lee's very frank allusions to Senator MoManus and Plunkitt were greeted with wild cheers.

"Can you beat it?" shouted Billy, swinging his big arms until you could fairly hear the whizz. "What are you people made of, anyway? First you let Plunk, the finest bunk artist in politics, con you along for years, then you fall for McManus's rough stuff. You let this pink whiskered bird from Forty-ninth street, who calls himself the King of Ninth avenue and the Tribune of the People, run over you with hobnailed boots. Ain't you got any spunk in you? What has McManus done for you since he's been Leader?"

"Not a damned thin g!" some one called out earnestly.

"You're right!" shouted Billy Lee. "So

"You're right!" shouted Billy Lee. "So this pair of bunks line up together now because if they didn't they'd both be trimmed separately. McManus knows he'd get beat if he ran for Senator again, and Plunk knows he never can be anything without McManus. Oh, it's a fine frameup, it is! I heard Plunkitt say he wouldn't give a cuss to be leader any more, that what he wanted was to go back to the Senate, where the rich had a chance."

Walter Comerford, Billy Lee's right hand man, who is adorned by a hughesette on each cheek, opined that the only way to beat the game was to make Billy Lee the leader, at which there was another big cheer and another brilliant display of fireworks.

cheer and another brilliant display of fireworks.

Mr. Paddy Blute, who is the landlord of a little bar in Ninth avenue, between Fifty-second and Fifty-third streets, said he had heard of the McManus-Plunkitt alliance, but he didn't believe all he heard.

"You see, kid," said Paddy Blute, "Plun's is a dead one and there's no use tryin' to get him to go the distance. No amount of dope would liven him up. I meets him down in the City Hall the other day, and I says, 'Plunk, whyn't you go to California, where you could be pickin' oranges and playin' th' horses, instead of rammin' around here claimin' to be a Demmycrat?'

"And Plunk says, 'Paddy, I am a Demmycrat.'

"And Plunk says, 'Paddy, I am a Demmy-crat.'

" 'Nix,' I said. 'You give $5,000 iron men to help Hearst and the Republicans beat Owen Bowen for the Assembly last year,' an' he snorts and walks away.

"I ain't knockin' anybody," concluded Mr. Blute, bending a shrewd face over a nickel's worth of beer, "but there's a whole lot of folks in this district what's tired of bein' made marks for fellies what play both ends against the middle and then want to grab the middle too. D'ye get me, Kid?"

POLL TAX CASE APPEALED. Virginia Court to Pass on Question of "Personal Payment."

RIGHMOND, Va., Aug. 8 .- A writ of error and supersede as was granted by the Virginia Supreme Court to-day in the cele-brated Norfolk poll tax case. The petition brings squarely to the attention of the court the matter of personal payment of taxes as a prequisite to voting.

The petitioners incline to the view that The petitioners incline to the view that the trial court erred in holding that the language and meaning of the section of the new constitution requiring personal payment of taxes requires that each voter shall individually and personally visit the office of the treasurer and pay his taxes in person with money out of his own pocket.

The petitioners claim that a check, a postal money order or cash sent by measurer, constitutes a personal payment within the meaning of the statute.

If the decision of the lower court is sustained in the case it is estimated that half the registered vote in Virginia will be disqualified this fall.

HOW HE FELT ABOUT DYING.

Suicide's Ideas Expressed in Photos With

Inscriptions. The sheep grazing on the south side of the baseball grounds in Central Park acted so queerly last night that they attracted the attention of Policeman Hargan. He found a young man holding a revolver in his left hand. The young man was un-conscious and there was a bullet wound in his abdomen. Dr. Brenner removed him to the Presbyterian Hospital.

A search of the clothing revealed a piece of paper upon which was written "Morris Berger, 21 years old, single, a dentist, of 641 North Sixth street, Philadelphia." There was a letter signed by Berger and four tintypes of the wounded man. Inscriptions on them were: "Here I am, thinking of the best way to kill myself." "Here I am, entirely lost. I see that I must do it." I know that there is no way out of it." "Here I am angry at the world and I know that I can't change it." The letter was as follows:

I hereby make a statement as to the cause of what I am about to reveal. I will this day commit suicide for the simple reason that I find no joy in life. I suffered ever since I was a child and I see no end to it. Of late I fell in love with a girl who loved me as dearly as I loved her, but the devil interfered and gave a thought to my parents to object to this girl, and the consequence was that I had to leave Philadelphia. I don't blame any one for what I am about to do. It is entirely of my own accord. No one knows of it. At first when I made known to my father that I loved this girl he was satisfied, but when the rest of my family came to know about it they raised such an air that I resolved to go to New York. And then she would come also. But I considered the matter and came to the conclusion that should I marry this girl it would make my parents miserable for all their lives, and as I saw no other way out of it I determined to take my life. I only wish to say that no one knows what I determined to do. And therefore no one should be blamed.

My sister raised an objection because she was angry at my sweetheart for an unknown reason and my parents objected because they thought I deserved a better girl than this one. I, however, loved this girl and she loved me, and therefore I did not care for anything but to possess her. But when I calmed down a little I considered the sorrow it would bring to my dear mother and father. thought I would rather die than displease my devoted parents.

I look upon this world as beautiful and nice to live in, but when one has to suffer to excess while he lives it does not pay to live in hell while on earth. If we want hell we can get it some place else. We live under a system of graft and falsehood, and I consider myself unfit for such a system. To hell with it all!

In my pockets will be found several photos which I had taken to-day to express my thought and determination upon my physiognomy. Adieu to everybody. I beg you to keep this from my parents as long as possible. In the left hand corner at the bottom of the last page of the letter was a rough pen drawing of a revolver aimed at the image

GIRL'S ESCORT SHOT DOWN.

Thursday evening she met Oscar Palmer, a young hatter, who, it is alleged, suc-cumbed at once to her charms, although he had no opportunity to acquaint her with the fact.

Rayman fell at the first shot, a bullet ripping through his left side an inch above the heart. Another shot struck Miss Blanchette in the side, but made only a slight wound.

When Policeman Streaman, who heard the shooting ran up the young women were trying to carry the wounded man to his hotel. Rayman was sent to a hospital, where the doctors say he has a chance for recovery.

Palmer was found in bed at home. He denies the shooting, but several witnesses have identified him as the man, and he is held to await the result of Rayman's in-

THIEF IN SALVATIONIST'S GARB Caught Robbing the Home of Walter Katte

WHITE PLAINS, Aug. 8 .- Clad in a Salvation Army uniform and cap, Julius Noll was taken to the county jail here to-day. He was captured last night while robbing the home of Walter Katte, a retired civil engineer who lives in North Broadway.

Mr. Katte and his family are away from home. At midnight a caretaker heard the bogus Salvation Army man in the rooms and telephoned for the Irvington police.

He had collected a large amount of jewelry and silver which is now in the care of the District Attorney of Westchester county. It is said that he rowed across to Irvington in a boat which he stole at Piermont-on-the-Hudson.

The burglar was identified this morning by Harvey Green, former clerk of the Board of Supervisors, as answering the description of a man who attempted to rob his home at Chappaqua. Sheriff Lane has investigated the burglar's record and finds that he had a room at 120 Third avenue, New York. He is believed to have adopted the Salvation Army garb for the purpose of avoiding suspicion. The Salvation Army people say that they do not know him.

CRACKS TO MEET IN NATIONAL REGATTA THIS WEEK.

Fine Course for the N. A. A. O. Annual Event at Springfield-Great Race Between Miller and Bennett in the Sculls -Conflicting Reports About Greer.

The thirty-sixth annual championship regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen takes place on the Connecticut River at Springfield next Friday and Saturday, and to judge by the list of crack scullere and carsmen who have entered for the different events the affair this year should be a great one. On the programme there are twelve standard competitions, varied enough to give an opportunity to all styles of oarsmen and of every grade. Along with these there are two contests which were put on as a sort of a supplement, and should prove more or less of a novelty. is an intermediate centipede and the other is a war cance race, and this latter item will surely turn out to be of great local interest, for canceists are plentiful in the neighborhood of Springfield.

As to the course itself there is nothing finer in the world. President James Pilkington of the N. A. A. O. has seen the best courses in America and he has stated that he has never yet seen anything to equal the Connecticut River. Eighteen crews, he said, could start abreast and have plenty of room, and there are no sharp turns, eddles or swirls, so detrimental to good racing. The great width of the course means that there really good crews will have all the chance possible to show themselves. Besides the fine course and the prospects of first class racing, the Springfield people have gone to a lot of bother preparing amusement for the visiting oarsmen. There will be auto rides, fireworks, bands, theatre parties

Because of the probably close competition the championship sculls is now the most attractive race on the programme and from the information available on the prospective contestants the issue should be between Durando Miller of the New York A. C. and Harry S. Bennett of Springfield. The latter Miller, but for the New York A. C. man it must be said that the race for the association singles took much out of him when he had

As to whether Bennett is a better man this has not been seen in any first class company reported to be unwell, but in a double with about a month ago. There is no doubt about man he is it is impossible to say. He won in every case with a lot to spare, and showed high class form in handling his sculls. In fact no amateur on this side of the water has a better method than Miller, for, like the professionals, he makes every stroke tell and he rows it out at the beginning as well as at the end of the race. There is no nervous digging, darting or spurting on the part of Miller; he simply drives steadily along and never pays the least attention to the others in the race, only that he keeps his weather eye on the leader, how far he is ahead or how far he himself is in the van.

When Miller won the association singles at Philadelphia last year he covered the mile and a half in 9 minutes 4 2-5 seconds, and this and a half in 9 minutes 4 2-5 seconds, and this is 41 3-5 seconds faster than the record made by Titus in 1901, though a few seconds must be allowed for the turn which was a condition of the race when the veteran made his mark. For this same event Frank B. Greer has a record of 8 minutes 17 seconds, but that time was accomplished on the Speedway course on the Harlem River in 1900, when Greer had a whipping tide to help him along. For the championship soulls Bennett has made the best time, that of 9 minutes 8 3-5 seconds, which was in last year's race, but he had the straightaway course, which surely amounts to a few seconds above that with a turn.

amounts to a rew seconds above that turn.

Greer won the championship title three times, and he holds the record for the course with a turn and on still water. The performance took place on Lake Quinsigamond, near Worcester, in 1903, when he covered the three-quarter mile stretch both ways in 9 minutes 38½ seconds, and this is more than twenty seconds faster than the best time made by Titus in 1902. When Titus won again in 1906 his time was 10 minutes 5 seconds, and over

Just now it is hard to know what sort of shape Greer is in or whether he will go to the start at all. Some time ago it was announced that Jim Ten Eyck, the veteran professional, had taken the big sculier in hand and was working hard trying to get him back into his old form. Against this story there is a rumor that Greer is not training at all and is only engaging in odd spins in his_shell, and that he is in even worse shape than last year, when he finished a length or so behind Bennett. Even some of the wise ones go so far as to say that Greer will not be seen in the race when the time comes.

For the last two years or so Greer appeared to be away of color. In his general look he snap annedsh which carried him aleade of his open he becomes an end of the space of Chess Notes.

Chess players generally look for another victory for Frang J. Marshall, the American, in the congress of the German Chess Association beginning at Dusselderf to-morrow. Another competitor will be Paul Johner, who though of Swiss birth has come to be considered an American representative by virtue of having won the championship of the Manhattan Chess Civi hast year. Other contestants will be C. von Bardeleben, Jacob. Fritz. Mieses, Spielmann. Suechting, Wolf. Treybal. Jr. Przeplorka, and possibly P. Lipke and Dr. von Gottschall. Marshall's most formidable rivals will be Mieses, Spielmann and Wolf.

In twenty international tournaments with which Marshall has been identified the American, has been placed first five times, his greatest achievements being at Cambridge Springs in 1904, where he outranked Dr. Lasker, and at Nuremburg in 1906, where he outranked Dr. Lasker, and at Nuremburg in 1906, where Dr. Tarrasch was placed far below him.

PELL TO MEET PALMER. Finalists Get Their Places in Ridgewood

The finalists for the challenge cup in lawn tennis singles in the Ridgewood Golf Club open tournament were desided yesterday. Richard H. Palmer won his match from E. S. Cameron in the third round in straight sets As Cameron had been playing well through-out the earlier part of the tournament a harder struggle was anticipated, but Palmer did very well and so made the result far from doubtful from the start.

Then Palmer went on to meet Lawrence D. Woodbury of the Orange L. T. C. in a semi-final match. Palmer won this, having for the first time in the tournament to go more than three sets to take the victory Woodbury had something left even after he had lost the first two sets and won the third Palmer did not let down in the fourth unti he had the victory assured.

Roy Richey of the Ocean Country Club eventually disposed of that persistent player George 8. Groesbock of the West Side T. C., after four deuce sets, for a total of sixty games. The first two sets and part of the third were played earlier in the week and the score was 9-7, 5-7, 5-5 when they began play yesterday. From 5-5, the scores ran to '11-9 before Richey got the victory. Then he had another long fight, because Groesbeck is a hard man to make yield. The final set went to Richey at 7-5.

Naturally enough, after this fight he was not at his very best to meet so good a player as Theodore R. Peil, who outclasses Richey under almost any circumstances. The smaller man made a good losing fight, but could not get a set.

The result leaves Palmer and Pell in for the had lost the first two sets and won the third
